WAR LOOMS NEARER IN EUROPEAN SKIES

PEACE HANGS BY SLIM THREAD

SHIPS AVOID ALL ITALIAN PORTS

ECONOMIC PENALTIES WON'T STOP ROME

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Oct. 5, 8 a.m.)

London, Oct. 4.

While war rages in Africa the peace of Europe hangs by a very slender thread.

Even before the League votes for military penalties against the Italians, if ever, there is a constant danger in the new naval concentrations and the mining of the Mediterranean, which may provide an incident which will plunge the nations into a European conflict.

This is illustrated by reports that ships are avoiding Italian ports and the Dollar Company orders to omit Italian seaports from schedules.

During the week other lines ordered their vessels to omit Mediterranean ports and avoid the whole area where war preparations are under way, citing high insurance rates, which is a significant omen.

DECISION FORECAST

Geneva, Oct. 4.

It is anticipated that the League of Nations will find Italy guilty of aggression and that the Council and Assembly will then vote to impose the Covenant, which will be done gradually, beginning with economic pressure, with military action as the final remedy.

It is thought it will be weeks, but not months, before the League is ready to take military action.—United Press.

When Signor Mussolini declared that "the settlement of the European dispute will be brought to a conclusion in Africa," and that "Italy will pursue her course against Geneva," he convinced the majority that he was not bluffing. To-day's news accords ample substantiation for the fear that he is in deadly earnest; and to-morrow's news from Geneva where the Council meets will be pregnant with the direst possibilities.

STUPENDOUS TASK

The League faces a stupendous task of stopping a war in Africa without letting it spread to Europe.

The British and French have committed themselves to stopping Signor Mussolini and cannot back down, yet economic penalties alone are not going to stop him, it is agreed.

There is not any doubt that the Council will rule that Italy is the aggressor in the Ethiopian war, making Article XVI, providing penalties, automatically effective. Then the League must decide the character and extent of penalties, and how they are to be enforced.

Granted French support, the penalties will be economic in the first place, and then military. It is on record that he will resist military action by a blow with his whole strength.—United Press.

HEAVY WAR RISK

New York, Oct. 4.

The Dollar Steamship Company declared to-day that the heavy war risk insurance rates necessitated omitting cargo for Italian ports.

"Yesterday insurance rates went to 52½ cents on the dollar for ships calling at Italian ports," an official said. "Besides, every Italian port lacks facilities for passengers and the hotels are overcrowded because of the military activity."—United Press.

GUARDS EUROPE PEACE

BRITAIN STANDS BY LEAGUE

FORCEFUL POLICY

London, Oct. 4.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Britain, to-day renewed the Empire's pledge to the League of Nations and to the principle of collective security, declaring that an isolationist policy for Britain in Europe was not only impracticable but dangerous. He was speaking at Bournemouth, and devoted the bulk of his eagerly awaited speech to the Ethiopian problem.

He dramatically appealed to Italy even now to refrain from action calculated to make the task of the League Council more arduous.

The isolationist school of thought, he declared, was dangerous heresy. "The time may come when events in Europe will have repercussions throughout the whole Empire. We cannot afford—either nationally or as an Empire—to refuse to play our part in Europe. It is not only our own vital interests which dictate our policy but the fulfilment of solemn international pledges."

Referring to the tension between England and Italy, the Prime Minister said: "There is no national enmity between Britain and Italy."

"That we should urge our fellow members of the League Council to oppose Italy from selfish and mean motives would be repugnant to our national self-respect and a matter to which the Government would not lend countenance," he asserted.

NO ISOLATED ACTION

The Government, he said, never had any intention of taking isolated action in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

"This country indignantly rejects the suspicions caused by its similarity in defending the Covenant. It will bode ill for the League if one of its leading members in proclaiming its fidelity to its obligations can be held up to suspicion and misrepresentation of those hostilities."—Reuter.

LEAGUE'S ACTIVITY IN CRISIS

SECRET SESSION PLANNED

ASSEMBLY TO BE CALLED

Geneva, Oct. 4.

The sub-committee of five, consisting of representatives of Britain, France, Spain, Portugal and Rumania, has completed its draft report on the juridical aspect of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute—namely, the conclusions to be drawn from the facts set forth in the historical report, which will be considered by a full meeting of the Committee of Thirteen, which it being held at 8 p.m. This meeting is expected to last until after midnight.

The two reports will be considered by a meeting of the League Council provisionally fixed for tomorrow afternoon.

A secret meeting of the League Council will be followed by a public meeting to-morrow afternoon, at which Baron Aloisi, the chief Italian delegate, is expected to make an important statement.

IMPORTANT POINT

The secret meeting will be faced with an important decision as to whether the procedure under Article XV is no longer applicable because a state of war already exists. As, however, the information before the Council is still very conflicting, it is probable that a brief series of recommendations will be adopted for submission to the public session.

It is likely that the Council will recommend the convocation of the Assembly which may meet on October 9.—Reuter.

MEETING ENDS

Geneva, Oct. 4.

The Committee of Thirteen concluded its meeting at 1 a.m. after adopting the first two portions of its report, and will again meet at 10.30 a.m. to put the finishing touches to its work.

The Committee has not yet touched the question of recommendations, but may do so at this morning's meeting. It will also informally discuss the new situation created by the outbreak of hostilities.—Reuter.

TOLL OF THE ROAD

London, Oct. 4.

Road accidents in Britain during the week ending September 28 were 142 killed and 4,580 injured. These figures compare with 180 killed and 4,889 injured during the corresponding week of last year.—British Wireless.

MISSIONS' DANGER

Washington, Oct. 4.

The United States Charge d'Affaires in Addis Ababa, Mr. Engert, has notified the State Department that he has insisted on women and children attached to missions departing immediately.

Mr. Engert adds that the Ethiopian officials have given an assurance that everything possible will be done to protect Americans, while the British Minister has offered to provide gas masks for any Americans and has also offered Americans facilities to erect tents in the compound of the British Legation.—Reuter.

ORDERED AWAY

Washington, Oct. 4.

The American authorities have ordered three American women and six children Adventist missionaries in Ethiopia to start for French Somaliland by train immediately. Italy has promised to respect the American flag.

The Adventists are camped in the compound of the British Legation in Addis Ababa and Mr. Cordell Hull will not comment on the order.—United Press.

AMERICA FOLLOWS JAPANESE

CAUTIOUS POLICY IS SAFEST

NO DECISION ON EMBARGO

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Oct. 4.

High Department of State officials expect the United States will follow the lead of Japan, in her present attitude towards the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. She will probably "go slow" in proclaiming a munitions embargo or even in declaring that she considers a state of war exists.

Since practically no munitions are leaving the United States for either of the belligerents the only effect of a declaration of an embargo would be moral.

The only practical contribution the United States can make is to lend her moral support to the League.

However, the majority believe that any embargo which might be declared would only include actual munitions and would not cover the border-line commodities such as foodstuffs and cotton.—United Press.

BLOW STRUCK AT ERITREA

COUNTER ATTACKS BY ETHIOPIANS

ITALIANS CONTINUE CRUSHING ADVANCE

Addis Ababa, Oct. 4.

A remarkable claim of an Ethiopian advance into Eritrea has been made here and appears to be supported by facts. It is stated that while Ras Seyoum's troops were resisting the Italian Army at Adowa, Ras Ayinu was advancing rapidly northward and to the west of Adowa, in the direction of Agordat, with 12,000 men.

The advance guards of his regiments are reported to have crossed the Eritrean frontier and captured some Italian outposts.

Some Eritrean native forces and some Somalis are said to have deserted to the Ethiopians.

It is also claimed that an Italian plane was shot down at Addis Ababa.

Meanwhile the Italian armies are crushing the Ethiopian defenders back by air bombardment and incessant artillery attack. They have captured Adigrat and Adowa.

The advance is proceeding almost exactly along the lines anticipated. A military attache says he expects the advance from Somaliland with Harrar as the objective will be accompanied by the entry into Ethiopia from the north of another powerful army.

WAITING ON BORDER

Authorities report that 30,000 troops are massed close to the Somaliland border, on the south, and will advance into the province of Aussa supported by squadrons of bombers, which are stationed at Asseb. Their objective will be to cut the railway.

The air squadrons will be employed in blowing up the railway bridge in the hills around Awash and the shoulders of the valley of the River Awash so as to virtually eliminate the possibility of internal railway transport of men and materials.

The entry of supplies from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan frontiers is vastly more difficult than from the British or French Somaliland borders.

"SCOOTER" TANKS

Owing to the nature of the terrain, military observers expect the Italians to extensively employ their tiny "scooter" tanks, vehicles carrying two machine-guns and capable of darting about with a mobility which makes them an implement of maximum utility and renders them most difficult targets for artillery. Indeed, the antiquated condition of this arm amongst the Ethiopian forces makes these light tanks almost immune from danger.

They are manned by a driver and gunner only and can operate at speed on an incline of 45 degrees. It is estimated that there are about 600 of these "scooter" tanks in East Africa.—Reuter.

PROTECTING RAILWAY

Rome, Oct. 4.

A message from Addis Ababa states that an Ethiopian detachment of 10,000 strong, commanded by a Swiss officer, is en route to Cooche to protect a bridge on the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railway. The force is equipped with Swiss anti-aircraft guns.—Reuter Special.

By MAX FACTOR

I've been a cosmetician to the court of Russia and to the court of Hollywood for a total of more than half a century but I have never seen any woman with greater allure than Miss Mae West. And no small part of it is due to her supreme skill in applying her everyday street make-up. After all, it's your average face that stamps you for what you are. Not the "dressed-up" face over which you spend hours for special occasions. And Mae presents to the world at all times delicately heightened features with that "softened" look. Not a trace of powder or rouge is discernible. There is no emphatic dark line above the eyes. That is a mistake frequently made by blondes especially—thinking their eyebrows must be as dark as their eyelashes. It gives them a hard, brittle look which men despise. But a woman with what we term "softness" in make-up instantly attracts. If she carries out that picture of ravishing femininity in voice and mannerisms as well as looks, you have this "MM-mmm" over which Movieland is raving.

DRAMA OF 68 CASTAWAYS

IL DUCE DEFIES

"Twenty million Italians are at this moment assembled all over Italy."

"This demonstration means that Italy and Fascism are one."

"For months past the wheel of fate has been moving towards one single goal."

"The time has come military measures will be answered by military measures; to war we will reply with war."

Mussolini's dramatic speech on Thursday from a balcony of the Palazzo Venezia was heard all over the world through short wave broadcasts. Twenty million people in Italy alone heard Il Duce's momentous message.

If the Somme Had Been Televised

PROFESSOR W. Cramp, of Birmingham, told the Engineering Section of the British Association last month that had television been possible during the Great War, the battle of the Somme might have been televised direct to cinemas displaying the poster, "Come and see your sons killed." If that had been the case, the war, he suggested, would not have been possible.

STRICT DISCIPLINE ON A DESERT ISLAND

They Lived for Ten Weeks on Birds' Eggs and Cocoanuts

WHEN sixty-eight men, women, and children found themselves cast away on a lonely island in the Indian Ocean in June, the first thing that was done was to hold a council, at which it was decided that ship's discipline must be maintained.

And maintained it was, all the ten weeks from then until last week, when the sixty-eight were rescued.

The men among the castaways were "told off" for various duties—keeping watch, collecting food, collecting water, and such things.

The women were given tasks such as cooking, making baskets, and other domestic utensils from coconut fibre. The children helped both the men and the women.

Unconquered Fish

The sixty-eight were the crew and passengers of the shipwrecked barque Diego, of Mauritius. They had almost been given up for dead, but a fortnight ago the Glasgow ship Clan Macpherson found them on Eagle Island, a tiny speck of land on the fringe of the Chagos Archipelago.

Captain Cosser, skipper of the Clan Macpherson, told for the first time, in a special radio message, how the castaways lived on the island.

After describing how ship's discipline was maintained, Captain Cosser said:

The castaways lived a very primitive life. Their main diet was birds' eggs and coconuts, which they found on the island, and rice which they had saved from the wreck.

They caught fish but found them unfit for food. They found water which was drinkable but brackish.

Mosquitoes made the nights a misery.

Small Boat Trip

At length the stock of rice ran out. The women and children began to suffer from lack of milk and the bad water.

All hope of a search vessel arriving had vanished. Regular shipping on the 2,000-mile run between India and Mauritius gives those reef-infested seas a clear berth. The position of the castaways grew desperate.

They began to repair the small boat which had been washed ashore from the wreck and when it was repaired the chief officer of the Diego set out, alone, to sail the dangerous stretch of water to a larger island.

The south-westerly monsoons, which bring sudden storms, dreaded even by big ships, were blowing. It was one chance in a hundred.

But the officer in his little boat made Peros Banhos, a small inhabited island in the archipelago, and returned with fresh supplies of rice.

"Ship In Sight"

When that gave out he made the trip a second time for more supplies, but the castaways were still without means of communication with the outer world.

Then one day came the sudden shout: "Ship In Sight."

Fires were lighted. Signals were flown to attract the ship's notice.

Lifeboats put out from the Clan Macpherson and battled time and time again through the heavy surf to take the castaways off.

Some were so weakened that they had to be hauled on board in large baskets.

Their delight when given milk, bread, and tobacco was pathetic. They have now been landed on Peros Banhos with supplies to last them a month—their first step back to the world.

IDA LUPINO... no quitter, she.

Ida Lupino Wins Brave Battle

LONG FIGHT AGAINST ILL HEALTH

Hollywood, Sept. 15.
IDA LUPINO has won her fight against illness and disappointment.

To-day doctors told the tiny, blonde film actress daughter of Stanley Lupino, the popular comedian, that her health has definitely recovered.

Together with this good news came the information that she has been chosen to play opposite Bing Crosby in his latest picture, "Anything Goes."

In Despair

For months past Ida has suffered from intermittent ill-health.

"Only three weeks ago I was cast for a part opposite Harold Lloyd in 'The Milky Way,'" she said. "But I was taken ill, and had to withdraw."

"I almost gave up the last time I was ill. It seemed as if I was fated to be ill every time I was offered a part."

"I am not sorry I came, but it has been a long battle."

"After I played the lead of 'Smart Girl,' which was followed by the offer to play in the Harold Lloyd picture, came my illness. But I was determined that I would win through in spite of it all."

"A little over a year ago I was afflicted with infantile paralysis. As soon as I was back at work after recovering from this I caught the flu."

"Then I caught another bout when I started on 'Smart Girl,' and I went through the whole of the picture with a temperature of about 102."

Lived 27 Days Without A Brain

SCIENCE MARVELS

New York, Sept. 15.

A baby that lived 27 days without a brain has presented a challenge to important and universally accepted theories of physiological science.

The child, a boy, defied all orthodox concepts of the functions of the brain by eating, crying, moving and reacting to pain and other stimuli. Science has held for centuries that the brain directs such actions.

Physicians of St. Vincent's Hospital, where the boy was born July 21 and died 27 days later, said there was nothing in the cranial cavity but fluid. The hospital withheld names of the parents.

A staff physician said the infant seemed normal when born, except that its lungs were slightly collapsed, and it ate, moved and cried normally to its sixth day of life. On the seventh day it refused food.

"Its skin, starting on the face, became bluish," the physician said. "It apparently had no appetite, but, remarkable, it was sensitive to pain. There was no indication to that time of an abnormality and it was impossible to tell, even then, what was wrong."

The child weakened daily for two weeks and in its last few days of life its head enlarged noticeably.

An autopsy performed a few hours after its death revealed absence of a brain.—United Press.

Women As Chieftains Of Two Scottish Clans

FIGHT AGAINST MALE SUCCESSION

A WOMAN and a girl of 16 may shortly become chieftains of two of the oldest Highland Clans—the MacLeods and MacLeans of Ardgour. If so the age-old traditions of male succession and of Scottish fighting chiefs who held their clans together by the prowess of their claymores will be broken.

The question of succession to the head of the Clan MacLeod has been raised by Mrs. Hubert Walter, who, on the death of her husband, took the name of Flora Mrs. MacLeod of MacLeod. She is the eldest daughter of Sir Reginald MacLeod of MacLeod, of Dunvegan Castle, Isle of Skye.

Sir Reginald, who died on August 21 at the age of 88, was the 27th direct male holder of the chieftainship. His son, an officer of the Black Watch, died in action in 1915. Thus, by the death of Sir Reginald, a 700 years' male line of Highland chieftains has been broken.

The Clan MacLeod dates back to the thirteenth century, when Olave, son of the King of Man and the Isles, married the heiress of Dunvegan, Skye.

Opposition to a woman as head of the clan goes as far back as the sixteenth century, when MacLeods refused to accept as only child, a daughter of one of the clan chiefs, as their chieftain.

MacLeans Of Ardgour

The sixteen-year-old claimant to the chieftainship of the Clan MacLeans of Ardgour is Catriona, eldest daughter of Colonel Alexander Hew MacLeans, of Ardgour, "the best loved chief in the Highlands."

The Clan Association has not accepted her as the new chief, many of the members preferring the claims of Commander H. S. MacLeans, an Englishman.

The Clan MacLeans rose to inde-

'HIS NAME IS ERASED FROM ROLL'

30 PEOPLE HEAR A SENTENCE ON A PROVOST

Dornoch, Sept. 22. MORNING service in the Free Presbyterian Church, Dornoch—church which Provost John Murray used to attend—was taken to-day by the Rev. Finlay McLeod, Moderator of the Church.

A congregation of thirty attended. The normal congregation before Provost Murray's dispute with the Church over dancing at a Christmas party was 90 to 100.

At the end of the service came the announcement that Provost Murray's name had been struck off the Church roll.

"Cast Me Not Away"

Mr. McLeod took as the text of his sermon the eleventh verse of the 51st Psalm:—

"Cast me not away from Thy presence; and take not Thy Holy Spirit from me."

"The sins of the flesh are sweet to-day," he said.

"The drink of the drunkard and the dance of the dancer are sweet sins in present-day life. These sins, like many others, will have to be cast aside before there will be any salvation."

"Our Free Presbyterian services are called dark and gloomy. Any darkness and gloom which exists is not in the Church but in a person's own soul."

The Sabbath Day

The sermon ended. Mr. McLeod made several church intimations, then paused and said: "I have the following additional intimation to make, and I hope it will not be transmitted on the Sabbath Day."

John Murray, one of our members, who refused to meet the Kirk Session on three occasions in regard to his opposition meetings in this parish, has had his name erased from our roll.

"I hope that all those who have attended the church steadfastly will continue to do so."

When Provost Murray was told of the Kirk Session's decision to expel him, he said: "They are acting contrary to Church law."

"I have not been a member of the Church since April 24. How can they expel a member who is not a member?"

MEN BOUND OVER

HAIR-OIL BOTTLE USED AS MISSILE

Broken pieces of a glass bottle were produced as exhibits in the Central Police Court yesterday when two Chinese, Wong Yat-ming, 21, unemployed, and Sun Hon-wai, 21, both attired in European style clothing, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen on a charge of fighting at Queen's Road Central near Morrison Street. Sun Hon-wai was further charged with assaulting Yau Kau, 30, Wong Ping, 38, and Ho Fong, 50.

Sub-inspector Walsh stated that Wong and Sun had known each other for about five years being at school together. Last year they fell out over some trouble, and on Thursday night they met. An argument ensued then Wong struck Sun in the face with his fist. The latter fell to the ground. He regained his footing and hurled a bottle of hair oil which he was carrying at his competitor. Wong ducked and the bottle struck Yau Kau, a friend of Wong, on the head and broke, the splintered glass injuring Wong Ping and Ho Fong. A large crowd gathered. An Indian constable came on the scene and took all parties to the station. The magistrate decided to bind both defendants over, and also ordered Sun Hon-wai to pay $5 amends to Yau Kau and $3 amends to Wong Ping.

Whatever it is that is being watched—cricket, racing, the stage, boxing, yachting, or tennis—a TELESPEC, by bringing things nearer, virtually puts the user into a better seat than he has paid for. More than that: it does it without the arms aching and the neck being cricked through the hands having to be kept up to the eyes all the time—as with an ordinary binocular. The TELESPEC is worn like spectacles. It leaves the hands free and enables moving objects to be followed just as easily as if ordinary spectacles were being worn.

Note—TELESPECs are supplied complete in English made solid "London Colour" leather, velvet lined cases with nickel clasps and shoulder straps.

BRITISH STAND ON SANCTIONS

Following similar expressions of opinion from other sections of the community, the overwhelming vote at the Labour Party Conference in favour of the enforcement of sanctions, should the necessity arise, serves to show that the feeling of the British public is strong for the taking of a bold lead by the Government in support of the collective peace system in use in everyday life. The Christian pacifist viewpoint, advanced by Dr. Salter, and endorsed by Mr. Lansbury, falls to take account of realities. Its sponsors are well-meaning, but, as one critic observes, it is much to be doubted whether they would put their principles into use in everyday life. The Archbishop of York was on sounder ground when he recently declared that it is not to be expected that nations will learn to act towards one another in the spirit of the Gospel until they have been brought by means of law, "supported as law should be by sanctions," to a reasonable state of justice. Love, he pointed out, could not be forced or organised, but justice, at least in outward action, could be. The Archbishop realised that action by the League might lead to war, or, at any rate to fighting, and in making that distinction he did so "because for the League to employ force against an aggressive member is no more 'war' in the proper sense of the word than a baton charge of police against a mob engaged in destruction is a riot on the part of the police." The more the present crisis is studied, the plainer does it become that Italy's aim is to force Ethiopia, by conquest if necessary, within the boundaries of an enlarged Fascist Empire. Whatever case Italy may in fact have against Ethiopia is simply a pretext for the over-riding aim of absorbing the country. Otherwise, it would be incomprehensible why Rome should refuse to have re-

NOTES OF THE DAY

KEEPING PEACE

General Debono's remarkable proclamation to the tribes on the Ethiopian border country under Ethiopian or Italian rule, declares that the Italian attack upon the lines under command of the Lion of Judah was carried out with the object of preserving peace. No doubt, too, it was the object of the Italian Army to preserve peace by bombing the ancient and virtually defenceless city of Adowa, where, according to reports, casualties were mainly among the women and children. But the contrary will probably result. Far from pacifying, or terrifying, the Ethiopians into submission, the effect of the assault upon the frontier and the hideous affair at Adowa will be to raise the tempers of the fanatical regiments of the Negus to frenzy. The Italian command, with some experience of boxing, perhaps, may be endeavouring to so disturb the equanimity of his adversaries as to bring them rushing to the attack and allow his tanks and machine-guns, his artillery and aeroplanes to shatter their ranks. A bit of barbarism may be good strategy. But there are few who would relish a brush with these black furies in places where tanks and planes and artillery cannot penetrate, and it is in these places that the Italian infantry will face the savagery which their own tactics have helped to create.

GOVERNMENT PHONES

The suggestion thrown out during the Budget debate that the Hongkong Government's independent telephone system should be abolished does not apparently meet with official approval. Whether or not it would be economic for the Government to come into the general telephone system of the Colony is a question for experts to decide. Be that as it may, there can be no questioning the fact that the Government system is inconvenient to the general public, which has come to appreciate highly the advantages of the automatic telephone. If it is inadvisable to scrap the present system, some effort should certainly be made to improve its working. Our own experience is that it is extremely difficult to get into touch with any given department or official. Again and again, on ringing up 39 and giving the appropriate departmental number, we have been left "in the air"—an experience which, to say the least, is most annoying. We can readily understand that the particular line may be engaged when a call is put through, but that is no reason why an enquiry should be met by blank silence, as so often happens; surely the operator could indicate his inability to get the number. There would be no occasion for raising this matter but for the frequency of the shortcoming mentioned. The subject might well be investigated by the authorities, with a view to redressing a very real grievance.

course to negotiation and arbitration and to resort to force. Instead, Mussolini's recent declaration that if the League of Nations expands "a remote Colonial campaign" into a general European war, the guilt would rest on the League, is a crude attempt to shift responsibility; its purpose is to force the League into refraining from concerting any action to restrain or prevent aggression. In effect, Mussolini wants the League to condone violation of the Covenant and the Kellogg Pact, and it is clear from his latest utterances that he is determined to oppose upholders of the collective peace system, relentlessly and ruthlessly. Such an attitude cannot be tolerated, and it is indicative of the strength of world opinion that Britain should be able to rally to her viewpoint the other members of a body specifically created for the protection of the weak nations of the world from the ambitions of those who are prepared to flout reason and justice in their greed for power.

JUBILEE of the Republic of PORTUGAL

PORTUGAL celebrates her spent several months in Portugal to-day. It is an agal, "he derives his moral authority and power." Professor Salazar was placed in charge of the Treasury, where he demanded and obtained financial dictatorship, and it commemorates the silver jubilee was not long before he proved of the Republic of Portugal, his exceptional abilities.

The Fifth of October, 1935, during his first year in office those of their brethren who have he accomplished the unprecedented feat of balancing the vast colonial possession in country's budget. To this end Africa, India, the Malay Archipelago part of Timor, and China, Portuguese sources, including all others who reside in settlements in foreign parts, celebrated the occasion as befitting the national day of an old European nation whose intrepid sons of the sea had never prospered as during the administration of one of Macao's most popular Governors, with October 5, 1910, following a brief revolution lasting but three days. The change in the form of government was welcomed, for the vast majority of the population in the capital city of Lisbon saw in the change the opening of a new era for the country.

It was on April 16, 1885, six and a half centuries ago, that the Cortes declared the crown of Portugal elective and D. John I. chosen King with whom began the rule of a new dynasty.

The overthrow of the monarchial system was principally due to dissatisfaction at the economic state of the country. The assassination of a prominent Republican leader in Lisbon precipitated an insurrection by Republican troops and civilians, who defeated the Royalists in a series of short but decisive attacks on the capital.

King Manoel fled the country, and spent the rest of his life in retirement on the friendly and hospitable shores of England, where the Royal guest moved in the best Court and cultural circles to the end of his days.

After the overthrow of the monarchy a provisional Government was set up under the presidency of Dr. Theophilo Braga, a distinguished litterateur.

The following year (1911) a Constitutional Assembly was formed, and a decree issued abolishing the monarchy for ever. The new constitution elected as its first president Dr. Manoel de Arriaga in August of the same year.

Parliamentary rule in Portugal ceased when a group of military officers by a coup d'etat seized control, in May, 1926.

Among those appointed by the military leaders in the formation of a new Cabinet was a Professor of Finance in the Law Faculty of Coimbra University.

of his country. In July, 1932, Salazar was raised to the position of Prime Minister, and to-day he rules as virtual dictator; but unlike most dictators Salazar is opposed to all forms of violence. Under his wise administration Portugal continues to enjoy an era of peace and prosperity unequalled in the annals of the Republic. It has been said that "his is an accomplishment unique in post-war Europe." Such is his modesty that it is known that he signs even official documents with the title "Professor of Finance in the Law Faculty of Coimbra University."

In brief outline the programme of the Republican Government may be sketched as, firstly, the separation of Church and State followed by the expulsion of the religious congregations and the nationalisation of their property—a measure subsequently found to be so unwise as to lead to the annulment of the order. Secondly, the abolition of the Council of State, the Upper House and all hereditary titles or privileges; and, thirdly, the concession of local autonomy to the provinces and colonies of Portugal.

H.K. AIR LINK

ARRIVAL OF IMPERIAL AIRWAYS FLYERS

That the establishment of an air link between Hongkong and Penang is not only probable but practicable, was the view expressed by Capt. W. Armstrong, of the Imperial Airways, yesterday afternoon, immediately after he had landed at Kai Tak aerodrome.

Capt. Armstrong, who is accompanied by First Officer N. Richardson (co-pilot), Mr. D. Hands (engineer) and Mr. W. Chapman (wireless operator), has just completed the first of the experimental flights intended to lead to the linking of Hongkong with the Imperial air route at Penang.

The airmen arrived at 3.15 p.m. and were met by a large number of persons, including the Hon. Comdr. G. F. Hole, Harbour Master and Director of Air Services, Mrs. Hole, and Squadron Leader Keary.

In an interview with a representative of the press, Capt. Armstrong stated that they encountered favourable weather throughout the flight, although rather strong head winds were experienced off Hainan Island.

"We carried no mails for Hongkong," said Capt. Armstrong. "We left Penang at 7 a.m. on Wednesday and arrived at Saigon at 4.30 in the afternoon. We remained at the French port overnight and resumed our flight to Tourane at 7 a.m. on Thursday. We arrived at that place four and a half hours later, and stayed there until seven o'clock this morning, when we departed for Hongkong. On the way, however, we encountered rather strong head winds, and coupled with the fact that there was a shortage of petrol, we decided to land at Port Baidar, which we did, at 11.30 this morning. After staying there for about two hours, we departed for Hongkong. We experienced no difficulty in locating Kai Tak, and our flight was perfect in every way."

When asked as to the feasibility of establishing an air link between Hongkong and the Imperial air route at Penang, Capt. Armstrong stated that this was not only probable but practicable.

The Services.

Capt. Armstrong added that his flight was merely for the purpose of survey but the first of the trial service flights would leave Penang about midday on Thursday, October 24, after the arrival of the service from England, and would reach Hongkong on the evening of Friday, October 25, thus taking only a day and a half.

In the reverse direction the first of the regular trial services would leave Hongkong on the morning of Tuesday, October 29, and would arrive at Penang at noon the following day, allowing ample time to make connection with the home-bound air mail which passes through Penang on Thursdays. The itinerary calls are most likely to be Saigon and Tourane.

The machine which Capt. Armstrong used is a small four-engined liner of the Diana class.

Capt. Armstrong and his crew will remain in the Colony for four days, after which they will make their return flight to Penang.

Peiping-Shanghai Record.

A Peiping-Shanghai air record of 3 hr. 32 min. was set up by Mr. Harold L. Farquhar, and his Mexican companion, Senor F. Bieler, last week when they landed at the Lungghva aerodrome at 10.05 a.m. Leaving the northern city shortly after 6.30 a.m., the two covered a distance of about 650 miles in a non-stop flight at an average speed of 186 miles an hour, while using only 60 per cent. of their plane's power.

Mr. Farquhar and Senor Bieler are on a pleasure flight around the world. They arrived in Hongkong on Monday last.

CALL FOR RECRUITS

Washington, Oct. 4.

The Italian Embassy announces that Signor Mussolini has called for military volunteers from among Italian citizens residing in the United States. However, none have been ordered to report for duty.—United Press.

Ing was addressed by the Managing Director of Imperial Airways, Ltd., to the Editor of the Hong Kong Telegraph:

This letter, conveying to you the compliments and greetings of Imperial Airways, was carried to Hong Kong in our air-liner "Dorado", on the occasion of this first visit to Hong Kong by an Imperial Airways aircraft.

The importance of an air service linking Hong Kong with the England-Australia route, being fully realised by the Directors of Imperial Airways, they have decided that "Dorado" shall carry out a series of test flights on a route from Penang to Hong Kong via Saigon and Tourane-Penang being chosen as the point of contact with the main route owing to the facility with which connections can be established there with the through services operating in both directions.

The flight which brings you this letter is the first of the air survey, that are being made between Penang and Hong Kong; and "Dorado" will follow up these preliminary surveys by effecting a series of test flights in each direction, thereby gaining the necessary experience which is necessary before a regular service can be instituted, as we hope it will be in the near future.

The value of air despatch from the point of view of accelerating Empire correspondence will be demonstrated by the fact that letters will travel between Hong Kong and London, by the flying mail when a regular service is in operation, in 9½ days, as compared with 19-24 days by the fastest surface transport.

As an evidence of the progress that is being made in Empire transport by air, it may be mentioned that in the six years since Imperial Airways established the Cairo-Karachi service, the routes operated by the Company and its associated enterprises have increased from 2,280 miles to approximately 20,500 miles; while active steps are in hand at the present time with both aircraft and equipment for the establishment within two years of a system of bulk transport of mails on the main Empire routes.

It is with particular pleasure, therefore, that we send you this greeting on the eve of widespread air developments, realising as we do the importance of the part that Hong Kong is destined to play in the growth of a great inter-connected system of Imperial air routes.

JUBILEE OF THE REPUBLIC OF PORTUGAL

famous in his immortal and inimitable work, the Lusadas, and the slab of stone in Camoens' grotto in Macao perpetuates the memory of an ill-fated son of Portugal.

In more recent years one of England's most distinguished Ministers, Plenipotentiary to China, Sir Miles Lampson, did the Portuguese in China the honour of laying a bronze laurel wreath, from British residents settled in China, at the base of the granite column supporting the bust of Camoens within the stone cave in the grotto bearing his name.

Portugal will be remembered as England's most ancient ally. It was in 1371 that an Alliance between Portugal and England was concluded.

It is recorded that on August 14, 1385, the Portuguese Army, aided by 500 English archers, utterly defeated her enemy at Aljubarrota. Early in 1386, 5,000 English soldiers, under John of Gaunt, reinforced the Portuguese; and by the Treaty of Windsor (May 9, 1386), the Alliance between Portugal and England was confirmed and extended.

In 1387 John I. married Philippa of Lancaster, daughter of John of Gaunt. Henry IV., Henry V., and Henry VI. of England successively ratified the Treaty of Windsor.

WHENEVER reference is made to national celebrations concerning England's oldest ally, the fact cannot be dissociated from the earliest days of the settlement of Hongkong. When the Superintendent of British Trade transferred from Macao to Hongkong, a couple of Portuguese families accompanied the British traders pioneers in founding the British colony of Hongkong on the island. That link in the chain of old associations that have endured for nearly a century remains unimpaired to this day.

It is gratifying to be able to record that several descendants of those early Portuguese settlers in Hongkong still survive and retain the best traditions of their forebears with this British Colony, and the staunch friendship founded by their antecedents is cherished to this day.

There are at least two old families domiciled in Hongkong who, it can be said with truth, can trace their origin in this Colony to the days when their grandfathers came over with the representatives of the Superintendent and took up residence on the then fever-stricken shores of Hongkong.

They were the first to establish contact with the Government of this Colony, and their descendants were the first to supply to the merchant firms of those early and eventful days the clerical labour so deficient in number but so valuable by reason of their knowledge of the dual languages, besides their mother tongue, of English and Chinese. They were the first interpreters, if one might exclude the couple or so of missionaries whose business it was to learn the native language in order to carry out their proselytising work on the threshold of China.

From interpreters the Portuguese circle broadened until

In the social, commercial and industrial life of Hongkong our friends of the Portuguese community took their place, and in the advisory councils of representative bodies they hold their seats and their advice is sought primarily in all that concerns their interests and the advancement of communal affairs affecting the inhabitants as a whole.

To their credit be it said that they take not a mean part in the Volunteer Defence Corps of the Colony and numerically their strength is inferior to none.

In Shanghai the Portuguese community is equal in number with that of Hongkong and there, too, they are an important factor in the commercial agglomeration of the foreign settlement.

THE Hongkong Portuguese community is celebrating the occasion to-day with a formal official reception at their old established club-house—the Club Lusitano—where all the community's official functions take place, with Senhor Alvaro Brito Laborinho, the Consul for Portugal, and the local Portuguese associations as the hosts.

The Consul presides on this occasion; this is the first year of his residence in Hongkong. The representative of the Portuguese Republic and his nationals, with their characteristic cordiality, are meeting their foreign friends and co-nationals in joint celebration.

In the evening, there will be a dance at which the Consul, the President, the Committee, and members of the Club Lusitano and other associated bodies will be "At Home" to their friends and guests in their national institution. The Club will be specially illuminated for the occasion.

HENRY COTTON'S RECENT DEFEAT BY PERCY ALLISS

A CRACKING GOOD GAME BY THE WINNER

ROYAL MID-SURREY TOURNAMENT PROVIDES THRILLS

SEVERAL NOTABLE FAILURES OCCUR IN THE FIRST ROUND

(By VAGRANT)

London, Sept. 11.

A September day of sunshine spent watching the leading golfers of the country setting about each other in sprint matches of 18 holes at Royal Mid-Surrey is a pleasurable experience for any golf enthusiast.

When the holder of the unofficial match-play title, J. J. Buxton, who won this "News of the World" £1,250 tournament last year, is beaten by an assistant, when Henry Cotton, whose brilliant victory in the 1934 Open did so much to reawaken British golf, and E. W. Jarmann, a Ryder Cup nominee, pass into the limbo of first round defeat, there is enough incident to lend the conversationist.

Henry Cotton was beaten in a cracking good game by Percy Alliss, one of the Ryder Cup team, whose iron-play is ever a joy to the eye. He was beaten by 2 and 1, but no man who saw the clash of mastery would care to wager upon the result of another match over the same distance. Twice Alliss has won over 18 holes and lost once over 36.

Alliss held a vital putt of seven yards on the third green, another on the thirteenth, and made some remarkable recoveries from bunkers so near mortality as to ensure the holding of the subsequent putt.

Cotton pushed out a drive of two, and hit the hole at the short 11th. He took his maul to play out of a pitch-mark, only to see the ball roll instead of disappearing for a winning two. Both played some glorious shots, and there remained the inevitable regret that both could not pass on to fresh fights.

MIRACULOUS RECOVERIES

Alliss was out in 23, to his opponent's 34, and a hole to the good. He had taken the lead at the third with his long putt. He lost the fourth with a pulled drive amongst the troublesome brood of hummocks, a bunkered second, and the first of some miraculous recoveries followed by a missed putt. Then Alliss hit a tremendous drive home to the 7th green (336 yards), almost holed his chip from the perilous edge at a bunker, and took the lead with a 2.

He holed a 12-foot putt to save the short 8th—after both had seen their tee-shots bunkered, and Cotton had pitched up dead. Two fine recoveries from rough at the 9th brought a half in 4; Alliss a hole to the good, and none for long holes about.

Cotton was just off the line with his second to the long 16th, but Alliss, with some difficult slopes, took three putts, a half in 3 with both snappily near two's followed.

Cotton squared at the long 12th (480 yards) where he hit a long, long drive into the pond—for which aquatic miracle there is now no penalty—and got his four with Alliss making a grand recovery from a bunkered second only to lip the hole from 4 feet.

Immediately Alliss took the lead he was not to lose, holing a five yard putt for 3 after Cotton, from an alpine stance on a bunker crest, and carried trees with his second and put (Continued on Page 9.)

BERLIN OLYMPIAD VILLAGE

PREPARING FOR 1936 GAMES

FACILITIES FOR ATHLETES

Berlin, Oct. 1.

The Berlin Olympic-Village adjoining the army post, Doberitz, just west of the capital, is nearly completed. In a few months it will be a green healthy spot free from dust, mud flies and insects, which accompanied the building process.

The insects have been the subject of an intensive drive with oil, gasoline and poison fluid; birds, and a company of parrots, specially trained in insect-catching, have been quartered on the grounds to clean out the last of the pests.

For the athletes a real Finnish hot water Sauna-bath has been provided at the edge of the village lake; there also are swimming pools, a roof garden, a bar and special tracks. In the nearby forest is a regular zoo.

The 4,000 athletes, who live there during the Olympics, will find a post office, bank, doctors, nurses, firemen and auto-parking stations. Numerous cooks from the North German Lloyd skilled in the foods of all nations have been hired. They will prepare palenta, pudding, pork and beans, chicken, rice, spaghetti, flet de bouef and French potatoes, griddle, cakes, frankfurter, Vienna sausages and sauerkraut and many other dishes. Doberitz also will have a movie, theatre, variety and concert house.

The Olympic-Village itself will be closed every evening at 9 p.m. sharp, to become a quiet sanatorium.

Dr. Carl Diem, the German Olympic leader, expects more than 50,000 spectators daily at the new Stadium in Grunewald, which will accommodate 100,000. Half of the seats and standing room have

Henri Cochet In Manila Exhibitions

CITY CHAMPIONS DEFEATED

Manila, Oct. 2.

Henri Cochet, internationally famous French tennis star, paired with Mauricio Zamora yesterday afternoon and handed the Philippines' national doubles champions a neat drubbing, 6-1, 6-2.

The local champion, Leonard Gavila, Jr. and Alfredo Diy, found Cochet too quick a thinker and too accurate with his placings for their brand of play. Zamora, who at one time held the doubles title with Diy, lent the French star able support.

In the opening match of the afternoon, Cochet defeated Mariano Sorvilion, No. 3 ranking singles player of the islands, in two straight sets. The scores were 6-3, 6-1.

Sorvilion, although entirely outclassed by the famed French ace, held his own as well as the majority of the local fans reasonably expected. His play was featured by hard fore hand drives which on several occasions caught Cochet unawares.

In the second set Cochet swept through the first four games before he let up sufficiently to allow Sorvilion to take a game—the only one for the local player in the set.

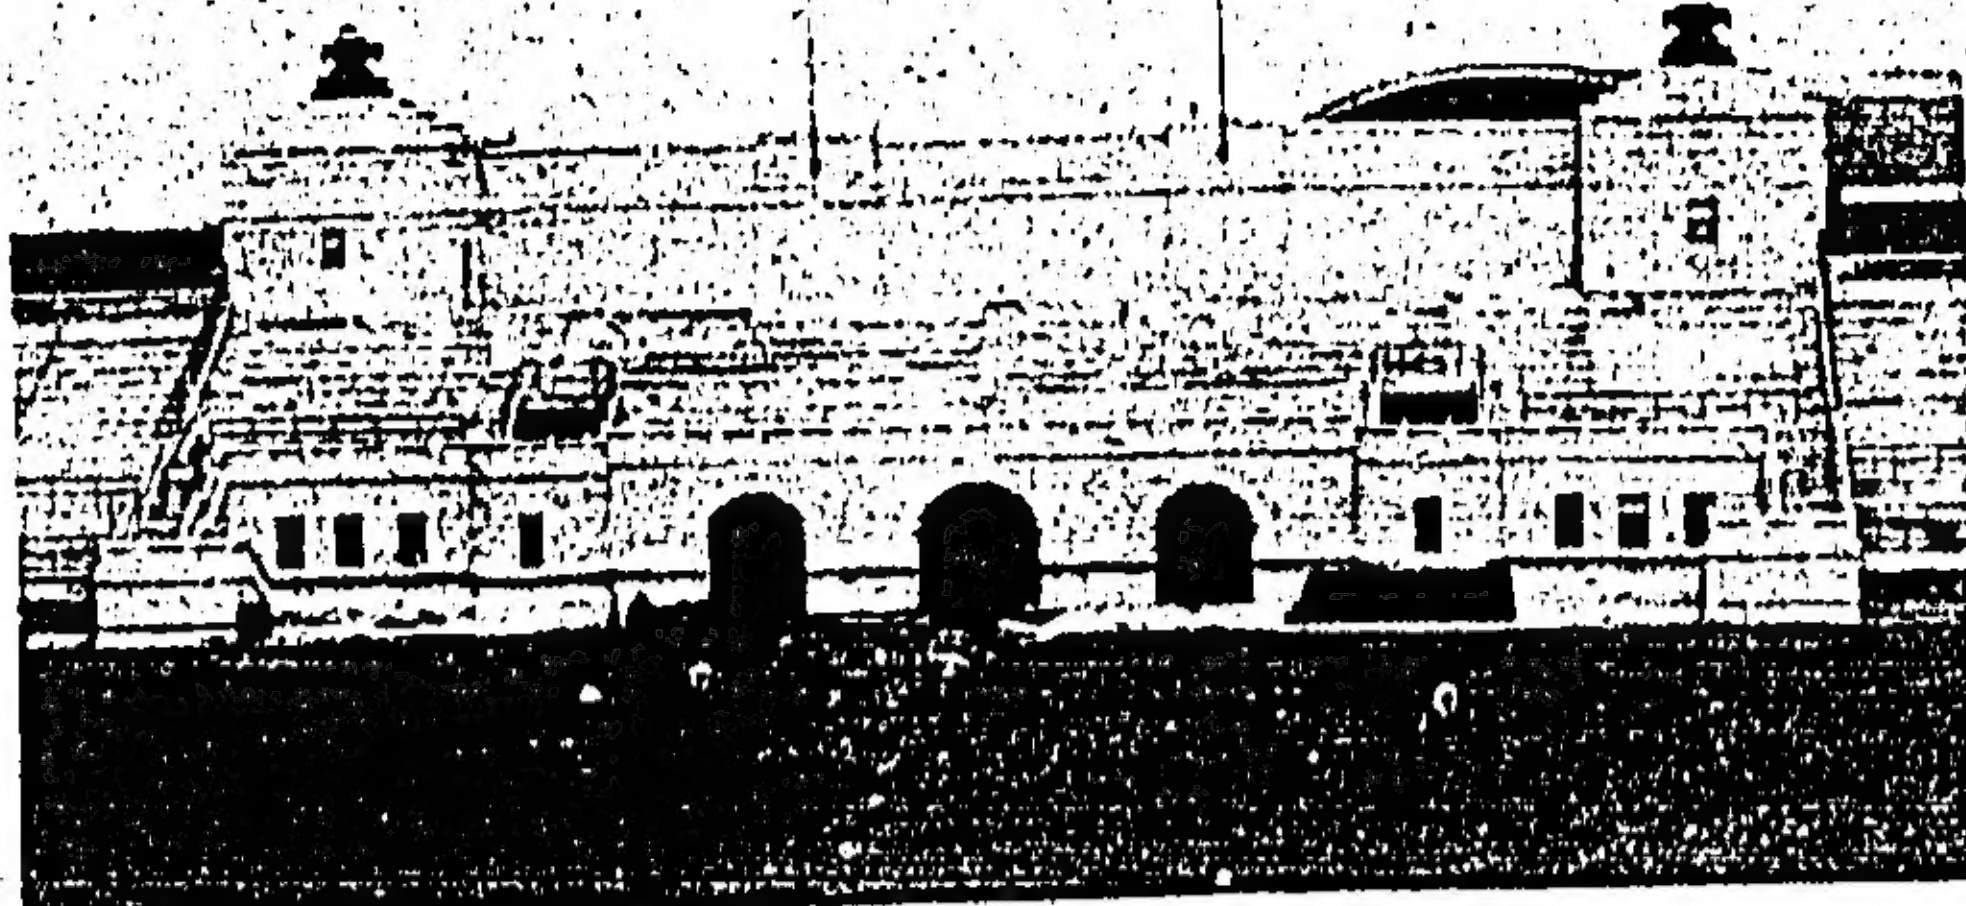

In the doubles match the national champions were entirely outclassed and but-generalized. Gavila and Diy won the first game of the opening set but dropped the next six in a row. Cochet's steady, accurate placing, and Zamora's excellent work at the net featured the match.

In the second set Gavila and Diy won the fourth and sixth games, on their respective services.

been reserved for foreign visitors and it is claimed that the Stadium is already nearly sold out.

For the sportswriters, the Committee has reserved more than 800 places; 50 long-distance phones have been provided. There also will be a long-distance wire picture service available to the entire press.

Dr. Diem has had considerable Olympic experience, having accompanied the German teams at Athens, St. Louis, Stockholm, Amsterdam and Los Angeles. United Press.

"BLUE" FOR POLICE COLLEGE

POST FOR WELSH RUGBY FORWARD

1ST. CANDIDATE

In the list of successful candidates for the Metropolitan Police College at Hendon, N.W., issued recently, was the name of A. M. Rees, the Cambridge and Wales Rugby football forward.

Rees is the first Rugby blue or international to gain admission to the college.

He learned the game at Llanddoverly College, and played in the last two Cambridge teams against Oxford. First capped for his country two seasons ago, he represented it in all three matches last season, when he also assisted the Barbarians.

Mr. Rees is 22, stands 5ft. 2in., and weighs 14st. He is a native of Langstock, Carmarthenshire, and left St. Catherine's, Cambridge, last July after taking his B.A. degree.

"It had been my ambition for some time to enter the Police College," he told a Daily Mail reporter. "In my opinion, police service offers a fine career as well as the opportunity of living a full, interesting and useful life."

"More and more university men are being attracted by these prospects, and I understand there are 12 Cambridge and eight Oxford men now studying at Hendon."

GAMES OR WORKS?

SCHOLARSHIPS OFFERED TO SPORTSMEN

ADVERTISEMENTS BY SCHOOLS

"Already a number of public schools are advertising that boys good at games are received at reduced fees."

I was a little taken aback when I read this statement, and could not help wondering what its effect would be on many who heard it for the first time, writes Dr. Cyril Norwood, President of St. John's College, Oxford, and formerly Headmaster of Harrow.

I could seem to hear the startled "What are we coming to?" and "That's the result of making a fetish of games," and "It's about time that these public schools were shut up," but decided to think it over first. I do not myself know whether the statement is quite true, as it stands, but assuming that it is true, does it represent a real degeneration and the loss of all the educational values?

Whether it does so or not, it is not a new thing; it has been allowed by practical and long-sighted house-masters here and there for the last 50 years.

SPEECH-DAY GLORIES

Intellectual successes are the glory of speech-days, but when the only list is read, the proud headmaster seldom dwells on the fact that most of them were bought by reduction of fees four or five years previously from all sorts of quarters. The proof of sound learning and sound teaching may be openly boasted of, sound tutoring and sound coaching less openly.

Yet everyone knows that most of those connected with Rugby would much rather beat Winbridge by an innings than win five more scholarships.

Why, then, should the authorities not take practical steps to secure the day material of victory?

Because, it will be said, it would teach boys that games are the only thing that matters. Is it quite a wise thing to teach boys that work is the only thing that matters? Or, rather, is it a wise thing to force young boys up to the maximum limit of intellectual performance before they are fourteen years old? Is no subsequent penalty for early success paid in a good many instances by inability to develop normally later in life?

No one has yet found the time, or shown the inclination, to study the success and the failures of life, or to reflect upon the painful truth that the filer and late starter so often show such a clean pair of heels to the early scholarship winner.

I should be much more ready to condemn the purchasers of future athletes if I were sure that the purchasers of future scholars were doing no harm. But I rather suspect that it may be a case where residents in glass houses are giving way to stone-throwing.

WORTHY OF REWARD

I do not believe that it is a good thing to advertise that athletic promise by itself will win a scholarship or a bursary, but I think that it is worthy of the reward of financial encouragement if it can be shown that other things have not been neglected. I would give the reward of reduced fees, or what is in effect the value of a scholarship, not only to the scholar and the athlete, but to the musician, the artist, the keen naturalist, and the outstanding boy of any description, if he could show that he had not neglected his general development for his own special pursuits.

After the war many benefactors founded scholarships, and laid down that they should be given for leadership or for public spirit and service or for unselfishness and moral virtues generally. They were mistaken in thinking that such qualities can be reduced to a calculus, or ought to be anything but their own reward, but they were right in thinking that our scholarship system is too narrow.

And for that reason I hold that these schools which give bonuses to athletes may be doing no great harm if they are doing it in the right way and taking other things into consideration.

A FUTURE DAVIS CUP PLAYER?

TENNIS YOUTH IN FINE FORM

DEFEATS NIGEL SHARPE

(By STANLEY N. DOUST)

Eastbourne, Sept. 8.

The victory of R. A. Shays, the 20-years-old Kentish player, over Nigel Sharpe, the holder, in the men's singles of the south of England lawn tennis championships, by 7-5, 6-4, caused quite a sensation to-day among the large crowd that saw this brilliant achievement.

This is only Shays's second season of tournament lawn tennis.

Tall and built on Perry's athletic lines, Shays has all the attributes of a great player, but in spite of his magnificent win he is still only a champion in the making. He made many loose shots off easy balls that a champion does not make; but he also made some perfect winners off difficult and well-placed shots by Sharpe.

In the rallies Shays showed rare judgment, and few people use their reach better than did Shays to-day. Sharpe, renowned for his passing shots, found them intercepted and even scored off.

LOST LENGTH

Shays's services, in the first set especially, frequently ached Sharpe, and his overhead play, too, was deadly. It must be said, however, that Sharpe's length was poor, and as he relies on good length more than do most players for his openings, the poorness of length contributed a good deal to his downfall. But Shays's forcing tactics hurried Sharpe, forced him into mistakes, and possibly made him lose his length.

The first set was an anxious one for Shays, who led at 5-4, only to be caught at 6 all.

In a mighty struggle for the important lead in the eleventh game, deuce was called six times before the game went to Shays. Some lovely drives, a timely lob, and unexpected drop shots won the next game and the first set.

Brimsful of confidence, Shays played delightfully to establish a lead of four games to one in the second set. Sharpe made a gallant effort to draw up to 4-3, and later took another game to reach 5-4.

With Sharpe serving, Shays, to his credit, went all out for his shots, and had three match points before he

BRITISH GOLF TITLE

MRS. GARON WINS BY ONE UP

FINAL GOES TO 38 HOLES

(Special to "Telegraph")

Southport, Oct. 4.

Mrs. Pauline Garon, the Essex golfer, and former British Championship finalist, won the English Golf Championship to-day when she beat Miss Elsie Corlett by one hole.

Miss Corlett, is a former Lancashire champion and English finalist. The match was to have been played over 36 holes but it took 38 before a decision was reached. Mrs. Garon was one up at the end of the eighteenth hole.—Reuter Special.

BRITISH WOMEN GOLFERS

RECORD BROKEN IN CANBERRA

Canberra, Sept. 9.

Miss Jessie Anderson (Craigie Hill), a member of the British women's golf team in Australia, broke the Royal Canberra Club's course record by three strokes by going round in 79 in the first round of the Federal Territory Championship.

She leads the field by one stroke from Miss Pamela Barton (Royal Mid-Surrey).

clined matters, and won the best match of his short career.

Another fine match was that between R. K. Tinkler and M. D. Deloford, who was the junior champion but three years ago. Tinkler won by 11-9, 6-4. It was anybody's match right to the end.

The most pleasing thing was the quality of the play—almost equal to Davis Cup form.

With three such young players as Tinkler, Deloford, and Shays, it seems that Britain has Davis Cup material to take the places of H. W. Austin and F. J. Perry when time forces them to retire.

MAKERS OF THE FAMOUS "IMPERIAL DRIVER" and "LESLIE AMES" CRICKET BATS

Made by Cricketers for Cricketers.

Sole Agents:—John D. HUTCHISON & CO., King's Building, H.K.

From a startling number of unsolicited testimonials received during the 1934 Cricket Season, we select the following:—

C. F. WALTERS writes:—"During the last two years of first class cricketing abroad and in this country, I have used only Gradidge Bats, which have in every way proved absolutely satisfactory."

R. E. S. WYATT says:—"I should like to take one or two of your Bats to the West Indies. The one I used part of last season was a beauty."

S. J. McCABE, on the eve of his departure for Australia, wrote:—"Throughout this tour I have used nothing but Gradidge Bats, making over 2,000 runs, which included eight centuries. I can assure you I have received the utmost satisfaction, and have no hesitation in saying they are better than any I have ever used before."

COUNTERFEIT COINS

CHINESE CHARGED WITH IMPORTATION

On charges of the importation of 98 counterfeit Hongkong five-cent pieces from Canton to Hongkong, and possession of the coins, Chan Cho, aged 25, unemployed, was committed to trial at the next Criminal Sessions, by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon.
"I have nothing to say. I did not know the coins were counterfeit. A friend asked me to carry the money for him," stated defendant.
Detective-Sub-Inspector J. O'Donovan stated that at 11.15 p.m. on September 20, the a.s. Sai On arrived from Canton and berthed at the Tung On Wharf. Chinese Revenue Officer 96 (Lam King) was on duty at the time and saw passengers, including defendant, disembark. He searched defendant and inside a black cloth girdle found two rolls of coins. As a matter of fact, said the prosecuting officer, when the Revenue Officer first stopped defendant he felt a lump round his waist and asked him what it was. The defendant replied that it was money, but when asked if the money was good or bad he gave no answer. Being rather doubtful about the coins, the Revenue Officer broke open one of the rolls. He bit one of the coins into two pieces.

Sent to Police Station

The defendant was taken to the Imports and Exports Office where Revenue Officer W. V. Ahern saw the coins and broke one with his fingers. The money was also examined by Revenue Officer T. A. Ellis, who decided it was counterfeit and sent the defendant to the Central Police Station, where he was charged.
When searched at the station, the defendant was found to have a wallet containing three Hongkong copper cents and one Canton cent but no other silver money.
Mr. A. Jackson, Government Analyst, testified that the 98 coins were counterfeit, being light in weight. Their composition was of tin, antimony and copper.
Evidence was also given by C. R. O. 96, Mr. J. L. Tetley, Assistant Government Analyst, R. O. Ahern, R. O. Ellis, Constable Wong Min, S. I. O'Donovan, Lam Pui, money changer of 114, Queen's Road Central, Ma Sai-lin, police interpreter, and Chinese Chief Revenue Officer Pang Lin.

and died almost immediately.
He was recognised as Chan Shun-lin, aged 34, unemployed, resident on the third floor of No. 198.
When the Police made a search of the floor, they found the body of a woman who had apparently died shortly before from multiple injuries which had been inflicted with a knife.
She was Shunt Po-chen, aged 25.
The floor was unoccupied when the Police began investigations.
It is suspected that it was a case of murder and suicide.
It is alleged that the woman was a prostitute.

LANTAU MURDER CASE

FIRST DEFENDANT ELECTS TO GIVE EVIDENCE

Pun Kam-choh, who together with four others, Ho Wah, Ho Yau, Pun Tak and Lau Cheung, is charged before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy, with the alleged murder of a Chinese doctor, Hsu Wan-fai of Chuk Ko Wan village, Lantau Island, on September 2 last year, gave evidence yesterday afternoon when the committal proceedings were continued.

The second, third and fifth defendants reserved their defence, after Mr. Schofield found they had a case to answer, and the fourth defendant elected to give evidence from the witness box. The case was, however, adjourned until 2.30 p.m. on October 8 after the first defendant's evidence.

Falsely Accused

In the witness box, Pun Kam-choh said he took no part in the murder of Hsu Wan-fai. He was falsely accused of the crime. He first came to Lantau Island about twelve years ago with his wife and family, and cultivated potatoes and vegetables and reared pigs. He got a lease of some land from the deceased's son. After the murder, he got frightened and ran away alone on the afternoon of the following day. He returned to Chuk Ko Wan on February 18, when he was taken ill and went to the Kwong Wah Hospital where he was arrested. Defendant stated that on the night of the murder he was at home, lying in bed as he was ill. He ran away because he did not know what actually happened about the murder, and because before the murder his son had been to the deceased's place with a rice offer, and he (defendant) was afraid he would be implicated through his son's visit. His son told him of the murder on his return about 8 or 9 p.m., and said he saw the corpse and that no one else was there. He appeared frightened.

Witness Retracts Statements

Witness then retracted his statement, and said that the deceased was not murdered when his son visited the place. He made a mistake when he stated his son saw the corpse. His son was, however, there when the murder was committed and saw the man killed. When his son informed him of the murder, he left the house that night, and he did not stay at home as he had stated previously. According to his son, Tung Kwai committed the murder, and several other men were present. Ho (witness) did not quarrel with the deceased before his death, nor had he any grudge against the deceased. He was afraid to leave home by some Hoklo. He could not explain why the widow of the murdered man had stated she had seen him at the murder.

At this stage the hearing was adjourned.

CHINA AND JAPAN

SWATOW TAX DISPUTE IS PURELY LOCAL CASE

Shanghai, Oct. 4. A spokesman of the Nanking Foreign Office told newspaper representatives yesterday that the Foreign Office had received a full report concerning the Sino-Japanese controversy at Swatow over the tax on imported rice, from Mr. Kan Chia-hou, the Foreign Office's special delegate in Canton. The dispute was an entirely local incident, which Mr. Kan Chia-hou had been instructed to settle with the Japanese officials in Canton.

While expressing willingness to settle the controversy, the Chinese officials are maintaining a firm stand that the special rice tax, which was first inaugurated in Canton, despite strong protest of Chinese rice firms, must be collected in Swatow, which is part of Kwangtung.

A Swatow report says that the newly appointed native Customs Superintendent of Swatow and Chiuchow districts, Mr. Chang Kang-fai, hopes to find a satisfactory solution of the dispute.

Suiyuan Kuomintang

A telegram from Suiyuan reports the sudden suspension of publication of the Suiyuan Kuomintang Daily News, an official organ of the Kuomintang, because this journal published certain news considered to be highly unfavourable to the Japanese. All Suiyuan Kuomintang propaganda work has been stopped since October 1.

Officers Visit Japan
Brig-General Lo Chik-chun, commander of the Kwangtung Military Academy and Brig-General Wah Chen-chung, high staff officer of the First Group Army of Canton are on their way to Japan to study military tactics, says the Union News. The two officers left by the President Coolidge at Hongkong last night.

SERIAL STORY

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XLIII.

The room was in darkness and there was no sound except a low, muffled sobbing. The sobbing ceased—only to be resumed. They stopped, began again. Three raps sounded on the door and the sobbing was hushed abruptly. After an interval of quiet there were three more raps. A figure, hidden in the darkness, moved and then went toward the door.

"Who is it?"

"Can I come in, Janet?" It was Mrs. Curtis' voice.

The door moved inward slowly. Mrs. Curtis stood on the threshold carrying a lighted candle. It was the candle that always stood on the table beside her bed. A loose blue negligee fell to the floor over her white nightgown. Her gray hair was screwed into a tight knot on top of her head.

"I couldn't sleep," the woman explained. "I was afraid—oh, my dear, you mustn't feel so badly!"

The light from the candle fell on the girl before her. Janet was in pyjamas. There were tear-marks on her cheeks and her eyes were red-lined and swollen. Her hair was disheveled and wild disarray and she looked thoroughly miserable.

"Come in!" and then quickly put her handkerchief to her mouth.

Mrs. Curtis closed the door behind her. "I was afraid I'd find you like this," she said. "Get back into bed, my dear, or put something on so that you won't take cold."

"I'm all right," Janet mumbled, but she picked up a flannel bath-robe and slipped it about her.

"Oh, Mrs. Curtis," she said, turning quickly, "I want to go away. I can't stand it here with you thinking what you do about me. I'd rather be anywhere but here if they want to put me there! I don't care!"

Mrs. Curtis placed the candle on the table. "There, there!" she said. "You mustn't go on this way. Of course you're not going to jail. You're not going anywhere."

"But I want to! I'd rather!"

"Sit down," Mrs. Curtis said. She moved toward the bed and turned on the pink-shaded lamp that stood there. "A little light will make the room more cheerful," she said. And then, "There's no use in letting yourself go to pieces, Janet. I don't think you took the necklace. I've already told you that."

"But Mrs. Carlyle thinks so and those men!"

"They can't prove it if you didn't. The thing for you to do is to settle down and get some rest. You'll make yourself sick if you keep this up."

Janet was silent. The older woman reached out and took her hand. "There's nothing for you to worry about," she repeated, "so long as you know you're innocent."

"But what am I to do?" The girl's eyes raised appealingly. "Everyone will know about it! They'll look at me and they'll say things. I—I wish I were dead!"

She began to weep silently. Mrs. Curtis stroked the girl's arm. "I don't think anyone will hear about it," she said. "I'll ask Betty not to tell anyone. Now that the police are at work it won't be long before they find out who to blame and everything will be all right."

"But suppose they don't find out?"

"They will!" Mrs. Curtis' voice was confident. "I wouldn't be surprised if they'd find the pearls to-morrow. They have all sorts of ways of finding things, you know. Of course I'm terribly sorry about the whole thing! I—I regret it deeply."

Janet shuddered. "Those men think I did it," she said. They said I took the pearls to someone when I was down town this afternoon!"

"There's one thing," Mrs. Curtis began hesitantly. "I don't understand why you went to the railway station, Janet. I had no idea that you were thinking of going away. Why didn't you tell me?"

"I was going to. I was going to tell you next Saturday."

"But don't you like it here? Is there anything wrong? If you'd only talked to me about it!"

"I just wanted to go away!" Janet murmured.

"But why? What is the reason?"

There was no answer for a moment. Then Janet said, "I can't tell you. I just wanted to go away, that's all."

The woman sighed. "I wish you'd be frank with me. Don't you see I'm trying to help you? Why didn't you want to stay here?"

Janet shook her head. "I can't tell you," she said.

Mrs. Curtis stayed several minutes longer and, though she spoke quietly, Janet was sure that she was underlining her words there was a note of uneasiness and distrust. It hurt more than all Betty's denunciations, more than the frightful accusations of the police.

After she was alone, again Janet lay staring at the darkness. No matter who asked—Mrs. Curtis or the detective or anyone else—she couldn't tell them why she wanted to get away from Lancaster. All she could do was to say over and over that she hadn't taken the pearls. And no one believed that.

Her temples were throbbing and her eyes smarted. She could still hear the police detective shouting at her, sneering at her denials, accusing her of being a thief. That interview had gone on for hours, it seemed, leaving Janet weak and in tears. It had been Mrs. Curtis who had insisted that the girl should spend the night in her own room. Mrs. Curtis had said until then that she didn't think Janet was guilty.

"But she thinks it now," the girl told herself wearily, "because I wouldn't say why I was going away. Oh, what's the use? No one will believe me. They'll make me say I did it! They'll make me say I did it!"

Janet had been there to see her in her misery and disgrace. He had been silent when a word would have meant so much. Could Rolf believe this terrible thing about her?

She turned and rumbled the pillow in helpless agony. Nobody believed her. Nobody would listen to what she said.

And so the night wore on. Toward morning she slept a fitful, restless slumber in which she dreamed she was running toward a cliff. An ogre who looked like the police detective was chasing her, brandishing a huge knife and there was no escape but the cliff. Without a moment's hesitation Janet jumped.

She awoke to find that the covers had slipped from the bed. The room was cold. Janet looked at the clock and saw that it was 7:30. Time to be up. She started to arise, then all at once her memory of the night before came back to her.

It was several minutes before she could persuade herself to get out of bed and dress. Her face was swollen and tear-marked and had to be bathed over and over with cold water. When she had used a powder puff carefully the effect was a little better.

It took courage for Janet to go down stairs, to nod "good morning" to Lucy and take up the pile of letters. It required courage, too, for her to sit opposite Mrs. Curtis at the breakfast table and make a pretence of eating. Mrs. Curtis did not look well and spoke of having had a restless night. She seemed to enjoy her breakfast little more than Janet and though the muffled words as light and golden as usual and the bacon as crisp, the food went back to the kitchen scarcely tasted.

Surprising as it seemed, the day wore along much as usual. Janet kept at her work, accomplishing little, but managing to seem busy. Each time the telephone or door bell rang her heart seemed to stand still, but the calls were unimportant. A young man to sell magazines. The florist. The chairman of the Three Arts Club committee on programmes. A wrong number. The electrical company.

Shortly before noon Mrs. Curtis telephoned her daughter. Janet did not overhear the conversation but later Mrs. Curtis appeared in the doorway.

"I've just talked to Betty," she said. "She hasn't heard anything but she promised to call when she does."

Janet nodded. There was nothing to be said. Nothing that had not been said a dozen times already.

"Suppose," she thought, "Betty doesn't hear anything? Suppose they never know who took the necklace? They'll always blame me for it."

There were no errands that day and Janet knew why. Mrs. Curtis had promised Janet would be available whenever the police wanted her for any reason. At any time they might come.

Luncheon was almost as quiet as a meal at breakfast. Afterward Mrs. Curtis went to her room. She was tired, she said, and would try to take a nap.

"If Betty calls," she added, "or there's anything important—be sure to call me."

Janet agreed. She went to the library and held a book before her but she could not read. She had been there for 20 minutes when the telephone rang shrilly.

Janet picked up the instrument. "Hello," she said in the low, emotionless tone that had become habitual. All at once her heart began to beat furiously. It was Rolf Carlyle's voice at the other end of the wire.

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Paul Muni was born in Vienna, but came to America at an early age with his parents. He was educated in the New York and Cleveland, Ohio schools, but got much of his training from his parents with whom he travelled the country, both being professionals. Muni showed a bent for theatricals as a youngster and played an important part when eleven years old. In this he was made up as an old man. The art of make-up intrigued him and he has made it a hobby ever since. When sixteen, Paul's father died and he went on his own, playing in vaudeville and then in Boston and New York stock companies. His work in a Theatre Guild production interested Sam Harris, who gave him a contract. On the Broadway stage he was a sensation. He first scored in "We Americans" and then in "Four Walls". On the strength of his work in the latter production he was called to Hollywood where he made his first picture "The Valiant". He also appeared in "Seven Faces" and "Scarface". Warner Bros. signed him under contract, his first picture being "I am a fugitive in a chain gang". He also starred in "The World Changes" and "Border Town". His current picture is "Black Fury", which opens at the Queen's Theatre to-morrow.

"Hard Rock Harrigan"

George O'Brien gives one of the best performances of his career in "Hard Rock Harrigan" which is due at the Alhambra on Sunday as unusual air of realism, fine performance by the rest of the cast and a story that builds from one peak of excitement to another, drew applause from a large audience. The story, which is replete with dramatic suspense, fast-moving action and pleasing romance, concerns a feud between a lanky hardrock drifter, played by George O'Brien, and his tunnel boss, portrayed by Fred Kohler, who are engaged in drilling a tunnel through a mountain-side to complete a gigantic aqueduct project. The action occurs principally in a construction camp and deep within the interior of the tunnel. Irene Hervey, talented young leading lady, appears opposite the star as the operator of the camp commissary. Her charm and beauty offer a welcome contrast to the rugged, untamed background where the "hardrock" men fight nature in the raw. Thrills mark exciting scenes in the tunnel, where O'Brien is caught in a cave-in which imprisons him with a companion in an inaccessible chamber. Braving untold dangers, Fred Kohler eventually rescues his rival—but for an ulterior motive. How O'Brien attempts to repay his erstwhile foe, by sacrificing his own honour and career, and the method by which he overcomes difficulties and wins the love of the heroine, all invest the film with the highest type of entertainment value. "Hard Rock Harrigan" is produced by Sol Lesser for Fox Film release and was directed by David Howard.

"The Informer"

"The Informer", RKO-Radio's picture of Liam O'Flaherty's novel of the same name, coming to the King's Theatre, opens up the rich dramatic territory that is Ireland. Victor McLaglen, in the central role of Gypo Nolan, is a primitive and rebellious Irish giant who marches to a doom of his own making over a road of shattered racial traditions.

"The Informer" may well prove to be an example of the picture of the future, a picture which goes deep into racial traits and holds a mirror up not only to nature but to all of nature's children. In this tale of two internal struggles the one that ripped Ireland asunder through revolution, the other that tore the soul of one of Ireland's sons in a battle between the forces of good and evil within him, Victor McLaglen is aided by a strong cast that includes Heather Angel, Margot Graham, Wallace Ford, Preston Foster and Una O'Connor.

"6 Day Bike Rider"

Joe E. Brown, the wide-mouthed comedian will come to the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday as a "6 Day Bike Rider" that is said to be the biggest rib-tickler in which Joe has yet appeared. The story, crammed with hilarious situations, side-splitting gags, romance and heart throbs, and in addition carries enough thrills to make a melodrama. Twenty-four professional riders take part in the contest which was held on a real racing track (Continued on Page 13.)

The Cabinet rose at 6.10 p.m., after a three-hour meeting, and issued a communique in the following terms:

"The Cabinet approved the Government's reply to the recent British Note. M. Laval gave a complete report on the international situation, especially the deliberations pending before the League. The Cabinet was in unanimous agreement with M. Laval on the position to be taken at Geneva, and expressed its entire confidence in him."—Reuter.

SUPPORT UNLIKELY

Paris, Oct. 4.
The Cabinet has approved the French answer to Great Britain's query as to whether France would support Britain in a Mediterranean war.

It is learned that the French reply avoids specifically responding to any of the British questions, thus dimming the hope of joint action against Italy.

It is believed that the agreement will go beyond the ordinary facilities of the most-favoured-nation clause, and also that in the event of economic sanctions being employed against Italy, Spain will refuse to participate.—Reuter.

SPEECH DAY

AT ST. STEPHEN'S GIRLS' COLLEGE

A large gathering of parents and friends of the pupils were present yesterday afternoon at the annual speech day and distribution of certificates at St. Stephen's Girls' College, when Lady Pollock gave away the awards.

The school report was presented by the Principal, Miss E. S. Atkins. Presiding at the function was the Bishop of Victoria (Rt. Rev. R. O. Hall), and he was supported on the platform by the Principal, the Hon. Mr. S. W. T'so, Lady Pollock, Mr. Kwok Siu-lau and the Rev. G. K. Carpenter, among others.

Others present among the large gathering were Mr. G. R. Sayer (Director of Education), Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralston, Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Higgins, Rev. H. W. Baines and Mrs. R. H. Kotewill.

A pleasing programme of music, drill and a play were presented by the students before the actual commencement of the speeches. Especially delightful was the piano solo by Miss Luk Sau-lin, the dancing and evolution by the Lower School and Kindergarten. Scenes from "Coriolanus" were well received.

The prizes and certificates were then distributed by Lady Pollock, who addressing the gathering said: "I think Speech Day sounds a terribly alarming—however I am not going to make a speech, but there are just one or two things I should like to say."

First of all, I would like to express the great pleasure it gives me to be here to-day. I always think that it is an honour to be asked to present the Certificates at St. Stephen's College, and I thank Miss Atkins for conferring on me that honour and giving me that pleasure.

In handing out Certificates one has no opportunity of saying anything to those who receive them, so I thought I would like to congratulate all those girls who have done so well in the School Leaving Certificate Examinations, and I wish them every success at the various Universities to which they are going, or whatever future work they may undertake. There is plenty of work in the world waiting to be done. Then I am sure you will all wish to join me in congratulations to the five Old Girls on their successes, two sisters, Kwok, on having graduated from the Faculty of Arts in the Hongkong University, and Ruth Ling from the Lingnam University.

Then in Music we congratulate Esther Lyen on having passed her L.R.A.M. Examination in London. Last but not least our congratulations to Caroline Braga for having won a Fellowship of Trinity College of Music London. We look forward to hearing more of her music in Hongkong. (Applause.)

All these successes reflect great credit on St. Stephen's College. Last but not least our congratulations to all of you students on the success of your Annual Sale of Work. We have just heard that last year you realised the sum of $2,000. Simply marvellous! How do you do it? I should so much like to know.

You will wonder why I am so particularly interested in your "Sale of Work". Well—it is just this—St. John's Cathedral is badly in need of funds. We have a tremendous overdraft at the Bank. And we do not like an overdraft at the Bank. The Cathedral Women's Guild have been asked to make suggestions of ways and means of getting rid of this overdraft, or at least of reducing it.

Among other ways and means of course a Sale of Work was suggested.

This was not met with any enthusiasm. Several people said "Oh No" you can never make much out of "A Sale of Work" must come to St. Stephen's Girls' College to learn how to run a successful sale. (Applause.)

I do not think we need to go far to find the secret of your success. The secret is in the "team work" of all you students working unselfishly and continuously for the good of others throughout the year.

It lies also in the Spirit of Fellowship and Service which runs through everything in this College. These are the secrets of your success.

I congratulate Miss Atkins, the Staff, and all you students upon this Spirit of Fellowship and Service and I hope it may continue to inspire you in whatever you undertake whether it be work or play. (Applause.)

A beautiful bouquet of flowers was then presented to Lady Pollock by Little Master Ronald Sun.

The Bishop's Address
Addressing the gathering, the Bishop said how glad he was that Lady Pollock had come to St. Stephen's that afternoon. He was particularly grateful for her talk to them when she dealt with the spirit of service. It was service that mattered in this world. Lady Pollock was loved by everybody who knew her because her life was devoted to service, not only in St. John's Cathedral, but all over Hongkong. (Applause.)

He went on to say that yesterday was a day when every Christian remembered St. Francis of Assisi. He was one of riches, but he gave up all these things to devote his life to the service of others. Next week the Chinese would remember Dr. Sun Yat-sen, who was to them what St. Francis was to the Christians. He was devoted to the whole face of Europe. A great deal of what was good in Europe at the present time came from him.

Bishop Hall referred to Miss Atkins' statement that the results of the examinations were good. He believed that was an understatement. The results were magnificent; they were the best in the Colony, and he motives," Mr. Baldwin warned. "I trust we have heard the end of this." He was loudly cheered.

COLLECTIVE SECURITY

Mr. Baldwin said he regarded collective security as affording Britain greater security than was obtainable by any other policy.

"Our primary necessity is to see that peace is preserved in Europe. We believe collective security and the League of Nations are the best means of preserving peace in Europe or exercising some measure of control should the peace be temporarily broken."

The Prime Minister paid a tribute to the unwavering loyalty and support Great Britain has been receiving at Geneva from every representative of the Empire and every quarter of the globe.

ALL MUST APPROVE

"Let us keep in mind during the difficult days ahead of the League that any action must be taken with the approval and co-operation of all," he advised.

Mr. Baldwin flatly denied that Great Britain had not acquiesced Italy with the British viewpoint from the earliest days of the crisis.

"There has been frequent and constant diplomatic contact," he asserted.

DISARMAMENT IMPOSSIBLE

"It is impossible any longer to pursue the path followed since the Great War of more practical disarmament than any other European country. The whole perspective has been changed by the re-arming of Germany," he went on.

He did not look to Germany, or any other country, as a necessarily potential foe, but the presence of another great nation armed altered the European outlook.

The fulfilment of League obligations may some day mean that the nations fulfilling them may have to maintain the Covenant by force of arms, he said.

Dictators were another new factor. However pacifist in the early stages of their dictatorships they tended throughout history to divert attention from domestic difficulties to external adventure, in the end.

MUST BE STRONG

"I am not satisfied with our position to-day. There is risk in accepting League obligations unless we are able to carry them out fully," he maintained. "I do not like questionings reaching me from the world at large with regard to our ability to fulfil our obligations."

"In no conceivable circumstances must we feel inferior to anyone within striking distance; nor should it be impossible for our people, whatever may happen, to be secure in their supply of foodstuffs from overseas," he concluded.—Reuter.

thought the best in the history of the School.

He was more pleased with what Miss Atkins had said about the Free School for children. Saturdays were given up to teach poor children, and the sick Sundays for the visiting of the sick in hospitals. He was glad there was no more place in the Colony where deaf and dumb children would have a chance to lead a normal life.

"I want to congratulate you on the splendid year, particularly to congratulate you on your splendid example of service to your fellow-men." The Bishop described his meeting with two old leaders of the Chinese people in a recent visit he had paid to Peking. They were disheartened and discouraged. They told him that there were many things the Chinese could not do (they could not fight). But they could serve the poor. "If every man and woman learns the spirit of service to his neighbour, it would be a magnificent example to the whole world." It was a message to them all the way from Peking, concluded the Bishop. (Applause.)

Refreshments were then served, after which the gathering dispersed.
